The Contract law paper followed the same format as last year with a requirement to answer four questions out of eight, a mix of problem and essay questions and a free choice as to which to answer. Timing remains a problem for a small but significant number of students – too many answer only three questions or write pages for their first question and only two paragraphs for their fourth question.

“The English courts’ approach to the doctrine of consideration is artificial since it has very little to do with the parties’ agreement. A change in the law is imperative to ensure clarity in the law and to stop a slavish adherence to the neo-classical theory of contract law.” Critically discuss. 4.

3. Don't question spot – but do use past papers where they are available. In a recent Prezi, Bristol University law lecturer Steven Vaughan recommends that students be smart in using past papers to help them identify which questions are more likely to come up in an exam. He provides this example of how to do so:
