These Standard Prequalification Documents serve as a guide for those wanting to prequalify to bid on large contracts for projects financed by the World Bank. Qualifying as a bidder is separate from the bid evaluation process. Before invitations to bid on large or especially complex works projects are issued, a process of prequalification is required to select competent bidders. This document helps bidders through the prequalification process. To simplify presentation by applicants for prequalification, standard forms have been prepared for the submission of relevant information. Guidance notes and examples are provided for the implementing agency making the evaluation. Annexes give information about prequalification that are likely to be of interest to potential bidders on World Bank projects. NOTE: This replaces Standard Prequalification Document: Procurement of Works (September 1999), Stock no. 14601 (ISBN 0-8213-4601-6).

Federal Government Procurement Guide, User Guide, Training Handbook, Instruction Manual. B&W EDITION The Inner Circle: How it Works at Public Works consists of eight parts: * Part One: Public Service and Procurement Canada PSPC (formerly PWGSC), with an employee base of nearly 13,000 people, plays a pivotal role in the provision of contracting for the purchase of goods and services to over 175 federal departments and agencies. Part One of this Guide provides an overview of PSPC’s internal operations. * Part Two: Retired Civil Servants A huge part of PSPC is contracting retired public servants through companies, agencies or individually. In this section, we explain why qualified ex-civil servants, the New ‘Old’ Workforce, are always in demand, and the benefits to the Government of Canada. * Part Three: The Circles of Government Contracting Winning federal government contracts can be laborious. This is made more difficult if you do not understand where you fit in the landscape; incredible time and effort could be lost with little possibility of any reward. Regardless of how good your product or price, you must be ‘engaged’ in the federal government procurement machine. We have identified outer, middle and inner circles which best describe where you fit as a client in the world of government procurement. * Part Four: Supply Methods for Federal Contracts We have identified 24 different supply arrangements offered by PSPC, identifying dollar limits, contract selection process, and contract award methods. This will assist you in defining which vehicles are appropriate for you and those you should target. * Part Five: ‘Must-knows’ - PSPC Bureaucracy and Procurement. Understanding the linkages between the bureaucracy and actual supply arrangements being offered is a must. Before even attempting to get a contract, you should understand the principles behind project authority versus technical authority, accountability frameworks, standing offers versus supply arrangements, security clearances, buyandsell.gc.ca, etcetera. * Part Six: Strategies to Winning Government Contracts Is an opportunity worth your time and effort to submit a bid? In this chapter, we provide 20 tips on how to evaluate the cost and rewards of a successful submission. We also discuss how to: (1) write your bid to increase your chances of success, (2) write proposals, (3) create project descriptions, and (4) design proper CVs. This chapter deals with how to evaluate a Request for Proposal (RFP) that could be targeted for a specific vendor. Winning a standing offer is just the beginning; difficulties arise in winning a contract under that standing offer. * Part Seven: Your Right to Challenge the System When things go wrong. We have attempted to summarize the limited processes and options available to you when you receive a negative response, or what we refer to as a ‘regret letter’ regarding a bid. If a situation arises where you lose a bid, disagree with the reasons provided, and totally disagree with the evaluators, you may find yourself with little choice but to go back to the drawing board. Or consider other choices which you may have. * Part Eight: Our Recommendations to Improve the System We suggest 20 changes in the procurement process to increase fairness in the playing field, reduce favouritism, allow more Canadians to secure government contracts, and save tax payers millions of dollars.

This revised edition of the Standard Bidding Documents accounts for editorial corrections and incorporates the text of previous corrigenda. These documents have been prepared by the World Bank for use by borrowers and their implementing agencies in the procurement of goods through international competitive bidding. The procedures and practices presented in this document have been developed through broad international experience and are mandatory for use in projects that are financed in whole or in part by the World Bank, in accordance with the provisions of the latest edition of Guidelines: Procurement Under IBRD Loans and IDA Credits. This edition contains nine sections, which cover invitation for bids, instructions to bidders, bid sheet data, general and special conditions of contract, schedule of requirements, technical specifications, sample forms, and eligibility for provision of goods, works, and services in Bank-financed procurement.
