MEPS is a leading ecological journal publishing research on all aspects of marine, coastal and estuarine ecology. MEPS coverage includes the whole spectrum of species, habitats, biological organisation (cells to ecosystems) and research (fundamental and applied). Priority is given to outstanding research that advances our ecological understanding.

We have selected 20 papers on marine ecology that have been published in the Journal of Ecology over the past four years. These span a wide range of ecological topics, including (but not limited to) biodiversity, herbivory, carbon sequestration, genetic diversity, and climate change. Similarly, these studies span a range of marine habitats, such as salt marshes, seagrass beds, rocky shores ...

Marine Ecology: Journal of Ecology

Marine Biology publishes original and internationally significant contributions from all fields of marine biology. Special emphasis is given to articles which promote the understanding of life in the sea, organism-environment interactions, interactions between organisms, and the functioning of the marine biosphere.
